Town & District

Next Monday is Labor and a public holiday.

Miss Frankton of Calgary was a visitor at the home of Mrs. W. Busby for a few days last week.

Miss Joyce Robinson of Vancouver spent a few days in town visiting her friend Miss H. James.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Woods and children spent a few days in town holidaying with the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. Ed Woods.

The town assessment notices are out and all who received them are busy figuring out what taxes they will have to pay.

The Legion boys are staging a chicken bingo night next Saturday evening. This should give everyone a chance to have a chicken dinner on Labor Day.

M. Bollinger returned last week from a holiday spent in the eastern United States.

Mrs. McLevy is leaving in a car so for Kelowna, B. C. to visit her daughter and enjoy the sights of fruit harvesting. In a competition sometime ago Mrs. McLevy won a free bus trip to B.C. and is now taking advantage of it.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Riddell and the daughter of Edmonton spent the weekend in town visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Riddell. Robert is taking a dentistry course at the university in Edmonton.

Mrs. W. McConnell who has been living in Calgary for sometime past, has moved to the city and states she has accepted a position as cook for the Cluny school.

Mrs. S. E. Lester returned Sunday from a trip to Berkeley, California where she went to visit her son and family, she will be with her son Eugene and wife and family of Red Deer.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Menard of Grand Prairie, Alberta, arrived in town Saturday to spend a few days visiting relatives and friends. Their children have been here for the past several weeks visiting their grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Ed Menard.

Slim Ferguson paid a visit to town last week and while there took advantage of the occasion to run to the Spry lakes and visit to the Knares and Cam Evans who are busy in that region with their cattle clearing land where the new lake will be formed when the lake is completed. Slim says he hardly knew them since they have sprouted beautiful foliage on their mugs.

Mrs. W. Busby has a wonderful crop of tomatoes in her garden this year. She was one of the fortunate few whose gardens were not hurt by frost. Mrs. Busby grew her tomatoes from seed and seems to be having better luck than those who did this year.

School opens tomorrow—Thursday for the next year's term to the disappointment of most boys and girls. Mr. B. Wick will be the principal in this term and the other teachers are Mrs. Sherbrook, Mrs. A. Bain and Mrs. McLevy. The latter lady is a new comer and comes from Saskatchewan.

Keith Hutton, Jimmie Hutton and Murray returned last week after spending seven weeks at Vernon, B.C. These boys were among the 150 Cadets throughout Canada who were in first aid, signaling, fire control and life saving. They were successful in passing their examinations which entitles them to take a six weeks course next year at a place yet to be decided upon. The boys are to be congratulated for the success of their efforts. They report having had a swell time and a wonderful experience.

Dumplings smell and taste as well no matter what they are called. French speaking Canadians call these little pretty additions to stews, soups,

PETER GRIMES
CBC Wednesday night October 12 will present from Toronto the Ontario Premiere and the first special production of the opera "Peter Grimes" by the young English composer, Benjamin Britten. The photograph shows a section of the chorus and orchestra of the CBC Opera Company (with solists in the foreground) during rehearsal for this important presentation. The music advisor to the CBC, Geoffrey Waddington (inset) will conduct the performance, which will be produced by Lawrence Gibbs. Solo parts will be taken by five Toronto singers. sagoes and fruit grand prices. In China they are Won Ton. In Hungary they are Spasmat and in Germany Kartoffel Kloesse. The Russian Piroshki and Italian Ravioli are not so light but are equally good.

Plain dumplings are made from a very soft taking powder, biscuit flour. The basic mixture may be varied for use in different dishes, a pinch of savory or sage adds to the dumplings for stew. Finely chopped onion not only looks attractive but adds flavor to chicken pot pie. A little cinnamon is an interesting addition to the batter if the dumplings are to be cooked in fruit juice and served in it. Tomato juice may be substituted for milk to make another variety in flavor.

The home economist of the Consumer Section, Dominion Post, says that if Agriculture felt that Canadians should be enjoying some of these dumplings which are so popular in other lands so they adapted a number of recipes to our measurement and methods.

Cheese Dumplings in Tomato sauce: 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour; 3 teaspoons baking powder; 1 teaspoon salt; half teaspoon dry mustard; 1 teaspoon shortening; 1 cup grated cheese; 1 tablespoon ground onion; 1 cup milk; 1 egg; 1 cup water.

Mix the dry flour, baking powder, salt and mustard cut in shortening with pastry blender until mixture is like fine crumbs. Add grated cheese, combine ground onion and milk. Blend with dry ingredients. Dilute tomato soup with water and bring to the boiling point. Drop dumplings into hot soup, cover closely and cook 15 minutes. Do not remove cover during cooking.

Fruit Dumplings: 3 tablespoons shortening; 2 tablespoons sugar; 2 eggs; 2 cups cottage cheese; half cup fine dry bread crumbs; 3 tablespoons farina; quarter cup flour; quarter teaspoon salt; Canned fruit.

Cream shortening and sugar, add any beaten eggs, beat vigorously. Add cheese to creamed mixture. Mix bread crumbs, farina, flour and salt and add to mixture, blend well. Put out on floured board into quarter inch thick cut into three inch squares. Place a little of the fruit, cherries, plums, apricots, peaches) into the centre of each square, pinch the corners to make a well to hold the fillings in. Drop dumplings into slightly salted, boiling water and boil gently, uncovered for about 10 minutes. The dumplings will sink to the bottom of the pot when they are put in but will rise to the surface when almost done. They will float three or four minutes before being completely cooked. When cooked lift from the boiling water, drain and serve hot, sprinkled with a mixture of 2 tablespoons melted butter, 3 tablespoons sugar and one teaspoon cinnamon.

Dirt is the enemy of carpets. Dirt which is allowed to sift into the foundation and remain there will help to grind away the foundation threads and destroy the rug. Sweeping will remove surface dirt, but it cannot remove dirt which is ingrained. Throwing the rug across the line, and shaking it with a carpet beater may remove the deeper dirt, but it also weakens the fibres. The best way to keep the rug clean is to vacuum it. Miss Caroline Jackson, home designing specialist, Alberta Department of Agriculture, advises that a small rug can be washed fairly successfully by home methods. First make a thick sudsy foam with a good mild soap and tepid water. Do not saturate the rug with water. Use two towels, one to apply the suds and one to rinse. Rub the soap foam in rotary motions over the rug working in a small area at a time. Wring the other rag out in clear water as tightly as possible and go over the area again. Repeat until the entire rug is cleaned.

CANADA SAVINGS BONDS

A fourth series of Canada Savings Bonds will go on sale early in October. This was announced at Ottawa by the Hon Douglas Abbott, minister of finance who, at the same time, gave notice that Canada Savings Bonds, series three, will be withdrawn from sale on August 31. The Minister said that the decision to issue a Fourth Series of Canada Savings Bonds was prompted by the enthusiastic response that had attended the previous three offerings.

Since 1946, when the First Series of these bonds was issued, Canadians have made more than three million purchases of Canada Savings Bonds, to a total of more than one billion dollars. Last year purchases on the pay roll savings plan by employees of thousands of Canadian companies, reached a new high of $118 million. More than 43 percent of all employees to whom the payroll plan was made available, bought bonds. Although terms of the new issue have not yet been announced, it is expected that the Fourth Series will retain the features which proved so popular in the first three. As in the past, the bonds will be available through banks and investment dealers as well as on the payroll savings plan. Preparation for the Fourth Series are well advanced.

WEDDING

GLADSTONE-YOUNG MAN

A wedding of much interest to the Blackfoot and Blood Indians took place between Horace Gladstone of Cardston and Allen Young Man of Glendon.

The marriage was solemnized at the Old Sun Indian School Chapel, on Monday, 22nd August, by the Principal of the school, Rev. E. B. W. Cole.

(The bride wore a floor-length white silk dress. The bridesmaids, Miss Pauline Gladstone and Miss Rena Gail Young Man were attired in rose colored dresses with veils to match; Bessie, the bride's niece, was the little flower girl.)

A reception was held in the main school dining room for one hundred guests. The toast to the bride was proposed by a former minister of the Blackfoot Reserve, the Reverend Canon G. Stocken, Canon Stocken, who came to Glendon in 1885, spoke in Blackfoot.

WALK MORE FOR YOUR HEALTH

Automobile laziness is stated to be the cause of one hundred deaths as many deaths annually as are caused by automobile accidents. The car has made it possible for us to get through life with hardly any exercise unless we are fortunate enough to be employed some variety of manual labor. This has completely changed our mode of living but not our diet. We still eat the quantities of rich food easy and quick transportation at any time by car should be one of our chief motives; to many it has become a far from that. The medical men are well aware for some time of the great increase of disease among the well to do. Investigation has shown that fully 90 per cent of the well to do members of our population have either undergone an operation or are suffering from some kind of disease, and the number of sudden deaths of apparently healthy people is increasing annually.

The blame for all this is placed unhesitatingly upon the thoughtless use of cars. To preserve health, man must exercise. Even less effective is the method of enjoying our sports sitting in cars and watching others play. We are clamoring for larger and more hospitals; we would be wiser to take more exercise.

It has become the fashion among the motoring public to drive through our parks and along our highways as fast as the law allows, and to agitate for more extended roads hither and yon, so that they may drive further from the beaten path. The public will undoubtedly have different ideas. They will probably want to explore our back beaches not to be seen from the road. They will be anxious to learn what is behind the hill. Now the motorist has but little to tell of his trip except his daily mileage record and flat tires.

There is no more delightful nor beautiful way to spend a week end than on the trail. National parks provide something different every few minutes; the scenery, both in relation to light and shadow and in position, is always changing; there is always the lure of the unexpected around the corner. An elderly clergyman was found wandering alone in the mountains. He said that during a serious illness he realized that in his life long study of the word to come he had seen very little of the world in which he lived. His enjoyment of his surroundings was almost gone; he realized to late how much of the beautiful in life he had missed by not walking more.

The most robust employee usually commands the best wages, but during slack times the weak ones are often discharged, to make room for a charge on the community. National property is based on national health. Strong robust manhood and womanhood is the foundation on which a strong nation must rest. Canada has much beautiful scenery, and it is not selected to any one section of the Dominion. Why not familiarize our selves with our own country by walking through it? Why not set aside each year, a hiking week, preferably in late summer or early fall and go on a hike of thanksgiving for our present health and realize a harvest of health for the future.

What do you ask of Your Bank?

The connection of many people with a Bank is only through a pass book and a cheque book.

We believe, however, that there is more mutual pleasure and benefit by doing business in a personal, friendly way.

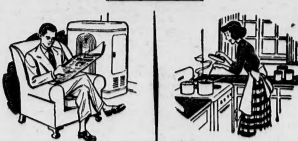

This Bank has grown to great size, but it is a human institution, very much interested in giving something more than across-the-counter service. The needs of the individual, and how we can help him to progress, are matters of first importance.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

YOU NEVER KNOW

By BERTRAND BECK

BIDDY ought to be keeping her own counsel, traveling the road of every alone. But the little brown-haired woman seemed so much like herself, Biddy felt she was talking to a sister.

"I was happy enough until last week," Biddy said.

"Too bad," said the woman, sympathy in her eyes.

"On that batch of letters from the Sea Gate, hidden under my fishing gear."

"Ah," sighed the woman her eyes suddenly bright. "Are you going there now?"

Yes, and after she had seen her she would call Larry and tell him she was on her way to Reno. Seeing the woman would make up Biddy's mind, talking to Larry long distances would be easier than telling him face to face.

"I've got the letters here," Biddy said, patting the bulging pocketbook she had bought for that purpose back in Beaverbrook four days ago. "I'm going to show you what I have there, and then I'm off. My ticket for tomorrow. Eleven o'clock. Track thirty-two."

The brown-haired woman turned away, stared out of the darkened window. Biddy felt slighted. She set the wallet firmly in the crook of her elbow, determined not to think of Larry and Beaverbrook.

It was then that she noticed that a woman had come and set down at her left, a small, dainty woman with delicate perfume. Her blue eyes were on Biddy's face as if she knew Biddy—from a photograph, perhaps. Lawrence carried Biddy's picture with him. Biddy remembered, startled into awareness.

On this woman whose skin was transparent, whose lips were gray—this was the kind of woman Biddy had always admired. And this was the train to Sea Gate.

"I have to talk to you," Biddy said, her voice thin. "I have a feeling of knowing you."

The blonde smiled, teeth white against lipstick. "You're not from Iowa?" she said, a note of harshness in her voice.

"I'm from Missouri, Beaverbrook. I'm on my way to Reno. I came here to see—someone—first."

"Husband trouble," the blonde said, and she smiled sadder.

Reminded of something she had forgotten, she opened her purse, lifted out a paper on which Biddy saw the name of a Reno hotel. It was a bill, dated last week. The blonde folded it carefully. "I almost thought I lost it," she said. "What does your husband say to taking the long way to Nevada? Expensive, isn't it?"

"I have my own savings," Biddy said. "Lawrence doesn't know that I know he's been—unfaithful."

The blonde laughed bitterly. "I suppose a man coming to New York would want things he never had time to get at home—in Beaverbrook. Theaters and gaiety."

She Thought She Know
The One — But Was Mistaken.

There was no use denying the truth.

"This woman, lovely and delicate and seductive, this woman had recognized her. This woman had been making Larry happy. Biddy wanted to scream. Biddy bit her lips.

The blonde was thinking aloud. "It doesn't hurt their marriages, most of the time," she said.

"How do you know?" said Biddy. "I get it," the girl flicked her eyelashes. "You think I'm your woman."

"She shrugged. "I couldn't occur to you that maybe I'm in the same boat—with my husband going west regularly and forgetting to tear up the letters. Her eyes narrowed. "Maybe it was you he was seeing out there in Iowa. How can I be sure? You're the kind that would make him roasts and apple pies and let him go to sleep after dinner in a big chair near the fire while you knit him socks. I hate sitting around the house! And now I'm free."

"How does it feel?" said Biddy, apologetic.

The blonde's eyes filled. "Awful," she whispered. "I never realized—"

"I'm not so sure. If I could do it over again I wouldn't. Take my advice, go back to Iowa, or Missouri, or wherever you live!"

"Thank you," Biddy said. "I don't want advice. I want my divorce." The blonde stood up. "Well, good luck."

"Is this a station?"

"It's the last stop. If you're going to Sea Gate you take the trolley."

"Are there telephones here?"

"In every drug store."

"I ought to be calling Larry in half an hour," Biddy said as the train came to a stop. The blonde disappeared. Biddy felt a hand on her arm, that of the brown-haired woman.

"Wait," the woman said, her voice clear. "Come home with my letters and pretend you never knew. Put them back under his gear and make sure they're in the right envelopes. He's very finicky!"

"You!" gasped Biddy.

"Yes, I'm not a woman, but when he comes again, I'm going back home to South Dakota. I've got my job again. Please don't tell him you know!" She turned around and ran down the railroad tracks.

"You!" Biddy cried over and over. When the next city train left, Biddy was alone. She held the letters more carefully than ever, worried now about getting them back the way they had come.

Community Spirit

Every once in a while in the strenuous, and more or less selfish days of a modern, highly organized period of the world's history, come little incidents of downright unselfishness, of the practical application of the Golden Rule, comes to light which does all good to hear of it and revives our belief in the innate goodness of the majority of our fellowmen, a belief which is frequently in danger of being destroyed when we read of so much deceit, dishonesty, cruelty and crime.

It was this spirit that animated the early pioneers of Eastern Canada who joined forces in conquering the virgin forests, built roads, schools, churches, quiet mills, and in one "boom" after another assisted each in turn to build houses and barns. And when the "last great west" was opened for settlement, the same spirit prevailed, neighbor assisting neighbor through their difficulties, and in times of sickness and disaster. Only so was the settlement of Canada made possible, and the foundations laid for the success of today.

It was the cultivation and practice of this neighborly community spirit of self-sacrifice and co-operation which established for the west its reputation of open handed friendliness and generosity. But as population increased, cities and towns grew, means of communication expanded, the vacant spaces filled up, and a more highly organized and mechanical development taken place, there is danger of this fine old feeling of neighborliness disappearing.

And if we are losing something in actual practice of the community spirit in our larger centres of population it is a gratifying to know that it still prevails in the hearts of western men and women. Furthermore, the neighborly spirit and co-operation thus displayed, and the uniting of forces in the performance of a splendid unselfish effort, cannot fail to leave its impress upon a whole community. It must inevitably make for the settlement of those little disagreements and differences of opinion which arise in all communities regarding school, church, municipal, and other local affairs.
